How to write Khaf Sofit

one stroke, from the top down

1 · One stroke
Start at the top left. Go across, round the corner and down — past the bottom line.

Good to know

At the end of a word, Khaf stretches its leg down below the line.

Hebrew is written from right to left, and a letter is drawn from the top down: the roof first, then the walls, then the floor. Every letter hangs from the top of the line — Lamed alone reaches above it — and Qof and four of the five final forms drop below it.

Practice

◀ Hebrew is written from right to left. Start each line at the green arrow and work toward the left.
