How to write Nun

one stroke, from the top down

1 · One stroke
Start at the top left. Go across a little, down the right side, and turn left along the bottom.

Good to know

Nun is narrow, with a short floor. Final Nun (ן) is one long straight line.

Hebrew is written from right to left, and a letter is drawn from the top down: the roof first, then the walls, then the floor. Every letter hangs from the top of the line — Lamed alone reaches above it — and Qof and four of the five final forms drop below it.

Practice

◀ Hebrew is written from right to left. Start each line at the green arrow and work toward the left.
